When searching by name, a detainee's first and last name are required and must be an exact match. When inputting a hyphenated last name into the Online Detainee Locator System, include the hyphen for the locator to find the individual (e.g., Doe-Smith). You can also search by using an A-number (Alien Registration Number) if you have it at the same link. The A-Number must be exactly nine digits long. If the A-Number has fewer than nine digits, add zeros at the beginning. You are also required to select the detainee's correct Country of Birth from the drop-down menu provided on the page. NOTE: If an alien is arrested for a state crime, you will still be able to locate them in the police jail or the county jail where they were arrested. If it was a misdemeanor crime, they would do their time in the Washington County Detention Center or the county jail where they were arrested and convicted. If they were convicted of a Tennessee state felony and sent to state prison, and not deported, then you can locate them in the Tennessee state prison system. How do I find someone who is in juvenile detention in Washington County, or in Tennessee? In the United States, a juvenile is a person under the age of 18. If a juvenile is a rrested for a crime, it is unlikely that their name will be publicly listed on an inmate search page or detention center roster, or will be released to the public. Only the juvenile's parents or legal guardians will be given that information. Review the juvenile detention centers in Washington County or call the Sheriff's Department at 423-753-1701. If the crime is a serious felony such as Capital Murder, some states will release their name to the public, either when they are first arrested or after they are convicted. However, in general, it is unlikely that an inmate who is a juvenile will have their name released in any public way. How can I see if someone is in jail in Washington County, or in a state prison in the state of Tennessee? For online searches, if you want to see if someone is in jail in Washington County, or in a state prison in the state of Tennessee? county jail inmate searches in Tennessee. If you want detailed information on a particular inmate in jail in Jail in Jail in Washington County? If you want detailed information on a particular inmate in jail in in Washington County, and you can't find it online in the jail inmate roster, your only other option is to either call the jail at 423-753-1701, go to the jail in person and ask, or write them at: Washington County Detention Center 114 West Jackson Blvd. Jonesborough, TN 37659 That said, most jails will limit the amount of information that they give to the public about an inmate in their roster because the offender is considered innocent until proven guilty, and thus is afforded a certain amount of privacy. Once an offender is convicted, you are far more likely to find out information about anyone as someone in the media can. You can also search a website that has all the public records about people. One of the best online websites we found will cost you only $1.00. Who can I call to find an inmate in Washington County? To find an inmate in Washington County? Does the incarcerating jail or prison have to keep the inmate in either Washington County or the state of Tennessee where they were originally charged or convicted, they can be kept in any US jail or prison that will have them. This is seen in circumstances where a jurisdiction is overcrowded, or an inmate is moved for their safety. That said, a person must stand trial where they were arrested unless the presiding judge or prosecuting attorney agrees to move the offender's trial to a different jurisdiction if it is likely they will not get a fair trial. What if I can't find an inmate, even though I know that they are in custody in Washington County? If you know an inmate is in custody in Washington County, and you can't find them, it can mean one of several things: 1. Either you or the jail has not yet updated their booking information or roster. 3. The inmate has already been released. 4. The inmate has either been arrested or is being housed in another jail. 5. The inmate is underage; therefore, it is illegal to post their information, or the inmate has already been released. 4. I know the person was arrested and is in jail, but my search in the Washington County Detention Center inmate roster comes back as "no record found.", it can mean one of several things: 1. Either you or the jail has the spelling of the inmate's name wrong. 2. The jail has not yet updated their booking information or roster. 3. The inmate has already been released. 4. The inmate has either been arrested or is being housed in another jail. 5. had their age incorrectly listed as someone under age 18. I was released from jail in Washington County, but my record still shows up online. When will it go away? If your record of arrest and booking is still showing online, even though you were released, it is because some jails allow that information to remain public indefinitely. Unfortunately, even though the charges against you may have been dropped, many jails will not erase that information from their public records voluntarily. In a situation like this your only option will be to get an attorney and request they petition the court to force the jail to remove this information. That said, if you were in fact found guilty of the crime you were arrested for, it is unlikely they will remove the information surrounding your arrest and conviction. An inmate's family member just died; how can I let them know right away? Call the Washington County Detention Center immediately at 423-753-1701. The death of a family member is one of the few times, if not the only time, that a jail will take a message for an inmate. Because of the sensitivity of the tragic news, when a family member has died, the news will be transmitted by a member of the clergy, a counselor or someone who is very high ranking within the jail. Jail management understands that a sudden death of a loved one could cause a violent emotional response that jeopardizes the safety of staff or other inmates. An inmate's family member just died; will they be allowed to attend the funeral? The death of a family member is one of the few times, if not the only time, that the Washington County Detention Center will allow an inmate, whether it pre-trial or post-conviction, to be allowed outside of the jail. Even if they are allowed outside the jail, they will have to have at least two armed escorts. An inmate attending a funeral is an extraordinary cost, use of staff and potential danger to the public. That is why it is rarely allowed. This is not always the case though, and whether an inmate can attend a funeral depends on the inmate's security classification, whether the jail has the staff to handle it, official jail policy, whether or not the inmate has an attorney that can push the right people, including the judge overseeing the inmate is placed in minimum, low, medium or high security facilities? An inmate's security classification depends on the following: 1. The inmate's current crime. 2. The inmate's history for violence within the walls of the facility. 4. The inmate's history for violence within the walls of the facility. 4. The inmate's history for violence within the walls of the facility. 4. What information is available to the public about an inmate depends on the laws in the state, the policy of the jail, and the sheriff's or warden's individual decision. Jail booking records and rosters can include more or less, the following information: • Full name of the inmate • Inmate's mugshot(s) • Booking date and time • Charges or offense details - the applicable statute • Bond or bail amount, if applicable • Court date, if set, plus the court name and location • Previous arrests in this jurisdiction, conviction details, and sentence What is vinelink, which you will see referenced when discussing public information about offenders and inmates, is a national public roster that both allows the public to look up and see the person's status, plus be able to track their movements, whether it involves being transferred from one facility to another or being released from custody. The tracking feature is especially helpful for those who are victims of, or witnesses to, a crime and fear that the release of an offender may be dangerous to them or someone close to them. Anyone can register with Vine to receive automated notifications via email, text or phone. It is available in 48 states and 2,900 jails and prisons. Here is a short video explaining why it started and how it works. How do I find old Washington County Detention Center inmate records from years ago?
