Crevier signed a two-year, $1.8 million contract with Chicago on Thursday.Crevier split his time between the NHL and AHL last year, making 32 appearances for the Hawks while also logging 15 games with the IceHogs. Given the one-way nature of his new deal, Crevier will likely spend less time in the minors during the 2025-26 campaign but figures to remain a fringe lineup player and will likely serve as a healthy scratch more often than not. ... See Less Berezchnoy signed a two-year, entry-level contract with Chicago on Wednesday.Berezchnoy split time last season between Russian leagues, playing primarily for lower-level Neva SKA in which he posted a 6-3-1 record, 2.49 GAA and .931 save percentage in 13 regular-season tilts. Even with this deal in hand, the backstop will likely spend at least another season playing in Russia before making the move to North America. ... See More ... See Less Frondell signed a three-year, entry-level contract with Chicago on Tuesday.Frondell notched 11 goals and 25 points across 29 regular-season outings with Djurgardens IF of Sweden's HockeyAllsvenskan in 2024-25. He added three tallies and seven points in 16 qualification games to get the club back into the SHL. He will likely remain in Sweden for at least one more campaign. Chicago chose the 18-year-old forward with the No. 3 overall pick in the 2025 NHL Entry Draft. ... See More ... See Less Toninato signed a two-year, two-way contract with Chicago on Tuesday.Toninato was limited to just five regular-season outings with the Jets last season, instead playing the bulk of his games in the minors with AHL Manitoba. With the Moose, the 31-year-old Duluth native notched 18 goals and 18 helpers. Considering the Hawks are still rebuilding their roster, Toninato should have a decent chance at making the Opening Night roster this fall. ... See More ... See Less Fridham will not be joining Boston University this season and will instead return to OHL Kitchener if he can't make the NHL roster, Ben Pope of the Chicago Sun-Times reports Tuesday.Fridham looked solid for OHL Kitchener last year, generating 27 goals and 27 helpers in 48 regular-season games. The 19-year-old winger built on those numbers with 13 points in 16 postseason appearances as well. There's certainly a chance Fridham could make the NHL roster coming out of training camp, but he's most likely going to head back to juniors for the 2025-26 campaign. ... See More ...
